

LONDON...

Capital ideas for Groups

FROM REDWING COACHES...

A number of positive issues have been cleared up by the Government, with free admission to five London Museums: The Museum of London, The Science Museum, Imperial War Museum, Natural History Museum and The Maritime Museum. This is in line with the recent initiative to 'de-fee' admission charges for the ten countrywide museums in November. The early indications are that visitor numbers are rising steadily and this is the right time to get your groups together and plan those visits.

The London Theatres are still willing to take you all and they are involved in various consortiums with The Mayor, Ken Livingstone, to encourage customers back into London.

Do not forget that Euros have come into force and you can check out the information available on our website www.redwing-coaches.co.uk and click on the 'links page' and 'Euros'.

Twenty new coaches are still coming. Contrary to opinion and speculation, Redwing are taking delivery of their new coaches despite a perceived down-turn in the UK Tourism Markets. In a recent trade press release, Paul Campana, Managing Director of Redwing issued the following statement: "We decided to take some of our new coaches earlier in the season to promote the Incoming Tourism Markets and to give us a leading edge with brand new coaches on our London Business".

For more information contact Keith Payne on 020 77 33 1124. Fax: 020 77 33 5194 or Email:- keith@redwing-coaches.co.uk Website:- www.redwing-coaches.co.uk