Designed by the pioneering architect Inigo Jones, the Queen's House is a masterpiece of seventeenth-century architecture. Conceived as a 'House of Delight' for James I's wife, Queen Anne, this exquisite former royal residence is set in the leafy surroundings of historic Greenwich Park, with spectacular views of the River Thames and the contrasting skyscrapers of Canary Wharf beyond.

The House was designed as a place of celebration; a tradition that continues today, making this stylish royal retreat the ideal venue to host your special day.

From drinks on the lawns with sweeping park views to unforgettable wedding ceremonies and dinners in the elegant South Parlours or the striking Great Hall, to dancing in the atmospheric stone-arched Undercroft; part of what makes the House so unique is its adaptability.

Our highly experienced in-house team of Events Planners will work closely with you to design your perfect day and deliver the wedding of your dreams.

The Great Hall

The Great Hall with its iconic Tulip Stairs and original black-and-white geometric marble floor provides a spectacular setting for wedding ceremonies, breakfasts and dinners.

Follow in the footsteps of former royal residents and enjoy striking views across the north lawns towards the Thames, where Greenwich Palace once stood.

The high ceiling of this perfect 40-foot cube-shaped hall features a magnificent contemporary work in gold leaf by Turner Prize-winning artist Richard Wright.

Bathed in southern light with breathtaking views up to the Royal Observatory, the Orangery and South Parlours offer one of the most stylish locations in London for small wedding ceremonies and boutique wedding breakfasts.

For your reception, open the south door and take full advantage of our lawns with vistas across one of London's oldest royal parks; the perfect location for toasting your marriage. Celebrate among fine art from the great masters, including Willems van de Veldes and John Everett.

Evening entertainment in the Undercroft

Continue your celebrations into the night in the Undercroft beneath the Great Hall.

These vaulted chambers create an atmospheric party space for dancing and after-dinner entertainment, with room for a DJ or band, a bar and a lounge area.

If you require extra space in the evening, why not consider a marquee on our lawns to accommodate extra guests.
